

Summer Cascade Birch (Betula nigra 'Summer Cascade' PP15105) is a gracefully weeping form of our North American native river birch. Its unique pendulous growth habit lends itself to very interesting uses in the landscape, whether trained with a central trunk via staking, or allowed to cascade down a slope or over a wall. Handsome bark and foliage are typical of the species. Fast growth rate, pest resistance and adaptability are additional features. A #2 VigorLiner® is pictured.
